Group begins year-long celebration

Approximately 23,000 Texas Telephone Pioneers, whose roots go back to the 1920s and 1930s, are gathering in Austin this weekend to mark the 75th anniversary of America's largest volunteer organization dedicated to improving the lives of women and children.

The Texas Telephone Sisters began in 1936 and have since evolved into the American Telephone and Telegraph Company Foundation (AT&T) and the Long Lines of America Corporation. The group has more than 3,000 members in 50 states and three countries, with chapters in Austin, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, and El Paso.

"The Telephone Pioneers of America show us how to be a leader," said Dr. Ruby B. Hines, president of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Pioneers of America. "They inspire us to make our communities better places to live and work."
Inquiring Photographer:

Do you think the ambulance service should be maintained by the County or contracted with a private service?

Mary McCullough: "I've had a private ambulance service. It's better. The service is faster and the people are more professional."

C.E. Johnson: "We're paying taxes to the county. I don't see why we should pay for a private service."

Linda Robinson: "I think the ambulance service should be maintained by the County. We should have one ambulance service for the county."

W.F. Nichols: "Yes, I think it should be maintained by the county."

Pat Sherman: "Yes, the county should be responsible for the ambulance service."

Jay Lynn Jones: "I think the ambulance service should be maintained by the county."

Move called 'major victory'

State Senator Richard Anderson of the East Texas area declared a victory Thursday in his fight to have the PDC, the private ambulance service, removed from the county contract. The PDC has service in 21 counties and supplies ambulence in the county. Anderson said he was pleased with the outcome of the case. The state Senate has passed a bill that would allow the PDC to continue operating in the county. This is the first time in the state's history that a private ambulance service has been granted permission to continue operating.

Ambulance service still debatable

The issue of whether to maintain an ambulance service in the county or contract with a private service continues to be debated. Many residents feel that the county should continue to provide the service, while others believe that a private service would be more efficient.

Gary gals remain perfect; struggle

Gary — It's nice to be an underdog, but coach Vivian Bivens would say a little more motivation is needed to get Gary's girls to the state title again.

The Lady Bulldogs are such a tight-knit group, it's hard for Vivian to believe they're playing so well. The girls are a lot of fun off the court, too, but they've got to be more focused on winning games.

"They're a great group of kids, and they've got the talent to do it," Vivian said. "But they need to work harder in practice and on the court."
Our Thanksgiving stems from a heroic festival held by the Pilgrims to give thanks to God’s bounty. They invited their Indian friends who arrived,60 strong, carrying five deer. The feast was welcome, the first larger for three days. That scene of sharing and giving, continues to this day. It is called Thanksgiving.

We remember the courage, bravery and determination of our forefathers who settled on the rugged coast of the Atlantic and pushed across the new country, regardless of danger. We honor their memory at Thanksgiving time.

We have been blessed far beyond any dreams our forefathers may have had. For us, Thanksgiving Day is an expression of utmost gratitude – the giving of thanks for the good that is and always has been ours.

Fascination with children's books led to success

By Dorothy DeWitt

How would you like to do the work you enjoy doing for a living? It can't be done for most people. But Mary Eugene Dothard has done just that. And she loves it.

Mary is the author of several children's books, including "The Three Little Pigs" and "The Three Bears." She says she got into writing children's books because she loved reading them as a child and wanted to share the magic of stories with others.

Her books have been published by several different publishers, including Penguin Random House and Simon & Schuster. She has written over 30 books and is currently working on her next project.

When asked about her secret to success in the field, Mary said it's all about telling a good story. She believes that if you can capture the reader's imagination, they will keep coming back for more.

She also encourages aspiring writers to keep practicing and never give up. "Writing is hard work," she said. "But if you love it, it's worth it."
