Drought losses total $135,000 for landowners

By Paul McConnell

Panola County landowners suffered losses estimated at $135,000 because of drought and what seems to be a trend toward more frequent droughts.

"The drought has been one of the worst in recent memory,"said County Extension Agent, Mr. Johnson. "It's been bad for a long time, but this year it's worse than ever. The county has been dry for months, and the crops are suffering."

The drought has caused significant problems for the county's farmers, who have been forced to cut back on production. "The drought has affected all crops," said Mr. Johnson. "It's hard to believe, but some farmers are considering planting fall crops to try to salvage something."}

Six employees laid off

3CI pull-out may close incinerator

By Paul McConnell

3CI, a major concern in the area, announced plans to lay off six employees due to economic downturns. This is the first time in the company's history that layoffs have been necessary.

"We are facing difficult times and have had to make tough decisions," said President Johnson. "We appreciate the loyalty of our employees and will do our best to support them during this challenging period."

The decision to lay off employees was not taken lightly, and we explored every possible option before reaching this decision," said Mr. Johnson. "We understand the impact this will have on our employees and their families, and we will provide assistance wherever possible."

Frosh raise volume to very painful level

LONGVIEW - A loud and nasty night brought the 17-AAA A Carthage Frosh up to the Longview Huskies. For the first time this season, the Frosh have seen some action on the field.

One of the stars of the night was Carthage's Dave Korff. Korff, a 140-pound frosh, was one of the players who scored a touchdown. Korff was later seen standing in the end zone with a football.

Another player who scored a touchdown was Carthage's Jerry Leach. Leach, a 150-pound frosh, was seen running down the field with the ball.

Solar interference to affect cable reception

Future Cable TV announced today that it would provide its customers with the latest technology to combat the growing problem of solar interference affecting cable television signals. The company, which serves a large number of customers in the area, is responding to growing concerns from customers who are experiencing interference from solar energy systems on their properties.

"We understand that solar energy is becoming increasingly popular, and as a result, we're seeing more interference on our cable systems," said Future Cable TV President, John Smith. "Our customers have expressed concern about the impact of solar panels on their television reception, and we're committed to finding solutions to address this issue.

"We're currently working with technology partners to develop new equipment that can filter out the interference caused by solar panels. This technology is expected to be available to our customers in the coming months.

"In the meantime, we recommend that customers minimize the distance between their television and solar panels, and that they position their television away from the panels to reduce interference.

"We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause and are committed to ensuring that our customers continue to enjoy high-quality cable television service.
