Alternate Operations During Campus Closure: In the event of an emergency or announced campus closure due to a natural disaster or pandemic, it may be necessary for Panola College to move to altered operations. During this time, Panola College may opt to continue delivery of instruction through methods that include, but are not limited to: online learning management system (CANVAS), online conferencing, email messaging, and/or an alternate schedule. It is the responsibility of the student to monitor Panola College's website (www.panola.edu) for instructions about continuing courses remotely, CANVAS for each class for course-specific communication, and Panola College email for important general information.

Artificial Intelligence (AI) Course Policy: There are situations throughout the course where you may be asked to use artificial intelligence (AI) tools to explore how they can be used. Outside of those circumstances, you should not use AI tools to generate content that will end up in any student work (assignments, activities, discussion responses, etc.). Use of any AI-generated content in this course without the instructor's consent qualifies as academic dishonesty and violates Panola College's standards of academic integrity.

Instructional Goals and Purposes:

The purpose of this course is to fulfill academic requirements of the Panola College Core Curriculum and an Associate of Arts or Associate of Science degree.

Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will:

1. Identify key ideas, representative authors and works, significant historical or cultural events, and characteristic perspectives or attitudes expressed in the literature of different periods or regions.
2. Analyze literary works as expressions of individual or communal values within the social, political, cultural, or religious contexts of different literary periods.
3. Demonstrate knowledge of the development of characteristic forms or styles of expression during different historical periods or in different regions.
4. Articulate the aesthetic principles that guide the scope and variety of works in the arts and humanities.
5. Write research-based critical papers about the assigned readings in clear and grammatically correct prose, using various critical approaches to literature.

Course Content:

A general description of lecture/discussion topics included in this course are listed in the Learning Outcomes section of this syllabus.

Students in English 2322 will read selections in English literature from its beginnings until 1800 that may include poems, narratives, plays, essays, or other selections appropriate to the course.

Typically, units may include the following authors or works:

- Unit I (The Middle Ages)—Beowulf, Chaucer (including The Canterbury Tales), Malory, The Second Shepherd's Play, Everyman, popular ballads
- Unit II (The Sixteenth Century)—More, Marlowe, Shakespeare, Sidney, Spenser
- Unit III (The Early Seventeenth Century)—Donne, Herbert, Marvell, Jonson, Herrick, Suckling, Lovelace, Pepys, Milton, Bacon
- Unit IV (The Restoration and the Eighteenth Century)—Dryden, Bunyan, Swift, Pope, Johnson, Addison and Steele

Students will read literary works as assigned by the instructor and will be required to pass unit tests over reading selections as well as supplementary materials required by the instructor, including background handouts, literary terminology, etc., at a minimum competency level of 70%.

In addition, students will be required to complete three essay assignments over topics provided by the instructor. At least one essay should be proctored. The instructor will specify requirements such as the use of outside sources and MLA documentation. Essays will be required to meet the English department's Minimum Grading Standards (see appendix at end of document) at a competency level of 70%.

Methods of Instruction/Course Format/Delivery:

English 2322 is taught both as a traditional face-to-face class and as an online class. Online English 2322 classes are delivered through the Canvas learning management system. Traditional face-to-face classes may include the use of Canvas as an enhancement to the course.

Instruction includes assigned readings, lecture, discussion, oral and/or written responses to readings, and both in-class and out-of-class writing and revising and editing. Online students interact with the instructor and with other students through email, discussion boards, and chat rooms. Online instructors determine requirements and methods of submitting drafts of essays and receiving feedback on assignments.

Major Assignments/Assessments:

The following items will be assigned and assessed during the semester and used to calculate the student's final grade.

Assignments

Students will take four Unit Tests and a comprehensive final exam. These tests may include a combination of objective test items and short essay responses. A test over a supplementary work, such as a play, is optional. Students will complete three essay assignments, with at least one of the assignments will be proctored. Short in-class writing assignments and discussion postings (for online courses) may be included in daily work.

Assessment(s):

60% of the course grade will be based on test grades. The remaining 40% of the course grade will be based on essays, quizzes, and daily work. Essays will be required to meet the English department's Minimum Grading Standards for English 1301 (see appendix at end of document—the same standards apply to English 2322) at a competency level of 70%. The instructor will specify requirements such as the use of outside sources and MLA documentation. A final exam is required. All testing not administered by the instructor must be proctored by a Panola College testing proctor at a Panola College testing site or proctored by an online proctoring tool approved by the instructor.

Course Grade:

The grading scale for this course is as follows:

- Unit Tests – 50%
- Daily Work and Quizzes– 20%
- Formal Essays – 20%
- Comprehensive Final Exam – 10%

Appendix:

The document below, Minimum Grading Standards, is the evaluation instrument used for all student essays submitted in the course. These standards may be modified for shorter assignments such as paragraph-length assignments. In addition, these are considered end-of-course standards, and may be applied by individual instructors accordingly. These standards also apply to other English courses (1301, 1302, 2311, 2323).

Minimum Grading Standards

To be considered passing, a written essay must exhibit that the student writer has followed both oral and written instructions, organized the paper coherently, developed it with significant content, and written in correct grammatical form.

- A passing essay must be over a topic appropriate to the assignment. If the essay requires a minimum number of examples and points, then that minimum must be met.
- In argumentative and expository discourse, the essay must have a clearly discernible thesis sentence and related topic sentences.
- The paper must reveal some systematic pattern of organization based on or growing out of a central idea.
- The paper must offer specific support of the thesis (facts, examples, explanations, justifications, arguments,).
- The paper must be coherent.
- A passing essay may not contain any combination of three of these categories of errors:
 - one or more sentence fragments clearly not used for a specific effect or for generally recognized rhetorical and stylistic purposes
 - one or more fused sentences (run-on sentences)
 - one or more comma splices

By the end of the course, any paper which does not measure up to these standards should not be awarded a passing grade.

The following errors are considered insufficient alone to cause a paper to fail, unless the number is excessive:

- subject-verb agreement errors
- pronoun-antecedent agreement errors
- spelling errors or confusions between such common words as their-they're-there, its-it's, no-know, lose- loose-loss, affect-effect, and/or such everyday words as occurrence, occasion, receive, among (not an all-inclusive list)
- spelling errors of less than common words
- misuse of commas, other than the comma splice
- misuse of the apostrophe --other punctuation errors
- shifts in person
- shifts in verb tense
- shifts in voice
- misplaced modifiers
